

Flush-mounted junction box Flex

Flex, connectable

Flush-mounted junction boxes safely and neatly house larger or more complex electrical connections. They are used where more space for terminals or distribution units is needed than a standard junction box provides, for example in larger residential and commercial installations. The boxes have several metric entries. The Flex version uses a single box size of 100 x 100 x 45 mm, connectable on all sides. With 1- to 3-gang covers, installations can be quickly expanded when more space is required.
